30- This system is considered valid since the approval is issued and published in the official newspapers.

Achievements:
Achievements and development of the Civil Affairs Sector (one of the important sectors of MOI providing services for Citizens and Expatriates) during the last period are summarised as follows:

First: Development and achievements accomplished in the registration procedures at the Civil Affairs (Civil Record) which is automatically linked to the Central Computer System in the NIC include the following:

1- Modify the method of displaying data: The method of displaying information on the display screen for the terminal is modified in order to allow the data registrar to view the Citizen>s data.

2- Provide modern equipments: 367 terminals and 363 printers are supplied and distributed on all the branches of Civil Affairs. However, branches that acquired terminals since 1405 Hijra (when the Civil Affairs Labour began) are not supplied by these new terminals. In addition, the system is developed and the speed of information exchange between the terminals and the NIC central computer system is enhanced by 100% which assisted the Administrations of Civil Affairs in controlling computer operations and provide more efficient services to the Citizens.

3- Establishing the Computer Department: The Computer Department is established and it is responsible for coordinating with the NIC to contribute in defining the problems and obstacles facing the information registrar while registering some procedures, and communicate with the NIC afterwards to discuss the solutions with the specialists, and contribute in developing systems and software. This effort is performed through a number of programmers and program analysts recommended by the NIC.

Second: Administrative Development Field:
Administrative development achievements include the following:

1- Positions: Focusing on qualifications took place in order to attract master and bachelor graduates.

2- Employment: Announcement of vacant jobs at Civil Affairs took place through Ministry of Civil Services in order to attract qualified employees. Around 70 employees were hired in the Administrations and Branches of Civil Affairs including a number of master graduates, system analysts and bachelor graduates.

3- Training: A member in the Teaching Committee of the General Organisation of Technical Education and Vocational Training is assigned as a part time Consultant to contribute in the Administrative Development and prepare the training plans assisted by a specialised committee consisting of training specialists in order to develop the abilities and skills of the Civil Affairs employees including training on computers, administrative behaviour and saving documents.

4- Automation: Administrations and branches of Civil Affairs are supplied with PCs to develop work procedures and shift from manual work to automated work through intranet in order to simplify and enhance work with lower cost. In addition, special programs are designed to implement few procedures.

5- Planning: An Administrative Committee was formed at the Civil Affairs according to the Decision of HRH Deputy Minister. This Committee plans, coordinates and organises the procedures of Civil Affairs to achieve the highest levels of quick services and develop work procedures.

6- Monitoring: The employees’ attendance and Civil Affairs performance is monitored according to the following:

a- Coordinate with the General Administration of Pursuit for assistance.

b- Carrying out the duties of the Administration of Monitoring at the Civil Affairs.

c- Formation of a work team that consists of qualified employees to monitor work progress of the Civil Affairs branches and ensure the steadiness of work procedures, and finalise the applicants’ procedures easily and promptly, and define the obstacles. Forms are created to evaluate the performance of the Administration regarding attendance, number of applicants, time consumed to perform a service, status of Documents Saving Departments and status of computers.

d- Issue a circular regarding the methods of dealing with employees that are frequently late or absent and distribute this circular on all Administrations and Branches of Civil Affairs.

7- Statistics: For the first time, statistical information for the activity of a specific year was collected; this information was registered in a statistical book issued annually including charts and statistical tables regarding the activity of each procedure such as: number of issued Civil Affairs IDs, Family IDs, Birth Certificates….etc.). Analysing the information of this statistical book contributes in defining the quantity of work in each branch of Civil Affairs. In addition, it helps in planning and analysing statistics related to security issues.

8- Equipments: Faxes, copying machines and shredders are supplied; they are distributed on the Administrations and Branches of Civil Affairs according to their requirements. In addition, a Factory is equipped to issue stamps and another factory to issue the employee’s ID by printing the employee’s information and photo electronically, and a copy centre is established as well to provide services for the Civil Affairs Administrations and Branches, and reequip the Civil Affairs Administrations’ offices, stationary, AC units, waiting lounges and Centrals.
